

NATURE CONSERVATION IN THAILAND IN RELATION TO SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Edited by
Tem Smitinand, Thawatchai Santisuk and Warren Y. Brockelman

(In Thai with English Introduction and Summaries)

Published by
THE SIAM SOCIETY

1985

This special volume, a collection of articles by 17 prominent conservationists and officials in Thailand, deals with nearly all aspects of conservation and its social and economic implications. The chapters review progress in many fields of conservation in Thailand, discuss conservation problems today and efforts being made to solve them, and suggest directions for the future. The volume stresses how the Thai people benefit from natural animal and plant populations and ecosystems in Thailand, and the need for a better integration of conservation efforts into social and economic development.

The publication of this volume is part of a project "Conservation in Thailand" supported by the Asian Community Trust of Japan and many other independent donors.

AVAILABLE AT THE SIAM SOCIETY
(131 Soi Asoke (21) Sukhumvit Rd.)

Price 100 baht